GENERAL CATALOGUE

PREFACE

In accordance with a resolution of the Faculty of the Rochester Theological Seminary passed April 3, 1899, the Board of Trustees at its meeting in May 1899, authorized the undersigned committee to prepare and publish this fourth edition of the General Catalogue. Previous editions appeared in 1869, 1876, and 1889.

This issue includes the names of all officers of the New York Baptist Union for Ministerial Education and of all officers and members of the Board of Trustees. It also aims to furnish, with reference to all persons who have been members of the Faculty and students of the Seminary, trustworthy information respecting the time and place of their birth, their collegiate and theological studies, their public services, and in cases that may require it, of their death. The attempt has also been made to give all honorary degrees above that of M. A. with the dates and sources, and a list of published works.

The names of students are arranged under their respective classes in the following order: first, all graduates of the regular course, in alphabetical order with the year of graduation; second, students who did not take the regular course of study in all its parts, or who did not remain until the course was completed, arranged in alphabetical order with a statement of the time spent by each in the Seminary, and separated from the full graduates by a single line. The fact that from 1883 to 1889 an English course was provided for men who did not study the Scriptures in the original, has made a three-fold division necessary for the classes from 1884 to 1892. During these years the names of the full graduates are followed by the names of the men who completed the prescribed English course, arranged in alphabetical order, with the time spent in the Seminary, and separated from the graduates by a single line. And separated by a double line from the English students, the names of all those who did not complete either of the prescribed courses are given. The names of full graduates are all printed in large type. In a few cases graduates of other schools who pursued further studies in this Seminary are placed at the head of the graduating class of the year of their residence, separated from the graduates by a broken line. Graduate students of this institution receive due credit at the appropriate place in their record.

A statement concerning the purpose and history of the German Department of the Seminary, as well as a record of its classes, will be found immediately following the records of the English classes.

A denomination, or a state, or an occupation, once used in a record continues in force until a new one is given. Unless otherwise stated the persons named are members of Baptist churches and the churches are Baptist.

An asterisk (*) indicates a deceased officer or student. A dash and semicolon or period following the year of entrance upon a service indicates that the person still continues in the work last mentioned. A semicolon at the end of a record indicates that further information is wanting.

In the preparation of this Catalogue valuable assistance has been rendered by the members of the Faculty, by former students, by the registrars and librarians of many institutions of learning, and by many pastors, church clerks and other officials. To all of these friends, the committee desire to render thanks. They desire also to make special mention of valuable aid furnished by Dr. C. R. Brown of Newton Theological Institution.

It remains only to add that notwithstanding all efforts, the Catalogue is still by no means complete, and undoubtedly contains its full quota of errors. So far as possible in the case of the living the attempt has been made to secure the authority of each man for his own record. In some cases, however, it has not been possible to secure the addresses of men who are no longer in the pastorate.

Any communications with regard to corrections and the completion of defective records in this Catalogue will be welcomed by the committee. These communications or others with regard to future changes of location may be sent to any member of the Faculty.

The attention of all former students is particularly directed to the fact that secretaries have been secured for nearly all of the classes, and every man is urged to inform the secretary of his class of all changes of location. Attention to this request will make the intercourse between the Seminary and its graduates more constant and intimate, and will also materially lessen the labors of the editors of future editions of the General Catalogue.

CHRONOLOGICAL NOTES

A Convention of the Baptist denomination of the State of New York "to consider the present aspect of the educational affairs of the denomination in the State and to take such action thereon as may be deemed wise and expedient," was held in Albany, October 9 and 10, 1849.

The committee of nine appointed by the Albany Convention met in Rochester in December, 1849.

The New York Baptist Union for Ministerial Education was organized by act of an educational convention of the Baptist denomination called by the committee of nine in Rochester, May 11, 1850.

The first meeting of the Board of Trustees for executive business was held in August, 1850, and it was resolved to open the Rochester Theological Seminary on the first Monday in November, 1850.

Articles of Incorporation were executed May 13, 1850, and acknowledged August 31, 1850.

The first annual meeting of the New York Baptist Union for Ministerial Education was held November 4, 1850.

The Rochester Theological Seminary was opened for instruction November 4, 1850.

From 1850 to 1860 the course of study in the Seminary extended over only two years. At the annual meeting of the Union July 10, 1860, the course was lengthened to three years and in consequence no class was graduated in 1862.

Until 1862 the anniversaries were held in connection with those of the University of Rochester, and came on the Thursday following the second Wednesday in July. Beginning with 1863 the anniversaries have been held in May, during the second or the third week of the month.

The year has generally opened the first week in September. Until 1860 the session was divided into three terms; since 1860 it has been divided into two terms, by a vacation of one week including the winter holidays, and a long summer vacation.

GERMAN DEPARTMENT.

HISTORICAL NOTE.

The idea of providing a place where young men of German birth could obtain some training for the work of preaching the gospel to the Germans in our country, originated with the Rev. Zenas Freeman, the first corresponding secretary of the New York Baptist Union for Ministerial Education. In his travels among the Baptist Churches, Mr. Freeman learned of the first successful beginnings Baptists from Germany had made in such centers as Newark, N. J., Philadelphia, Pa., New York City and Buffalo, and concluded to encourage promising young men in these German churches to carry on this work still further. He invited them to come to Rochester. In the first published catalogue of the Seminary a special course of studies, embracing academical, collegiate and theological subjects, and extending over a period of four years, was announced as designed to meet the wants of such young men. The first German student came in 1851 and remained for two years. In 1852 several others followed, but only one of these succeeded in completing the entire course, graduating from the University of Rochester and the English Department of the Seminary. Inability to make sufficient practical use of the English language cut the course of the others short. For this reason also the increase in the number of German students was very slight, until the trustees of the New York Baptist Union, in 1858, appointed a native German teacher and thereby established what has since been called the German Department. Rev. Augustus Rauschenbusch D.D. was the first teacher. He remained in this position for thirty-one years. With the success of the German Baptist churches in our country the demand for a larger number of pastors and missionaries increased. This necessitated the corresponding broadening out of the course of instruction and the appointment of additional teachers. In 1872 the Rev. Hermann M. Schaeffer, and in 1884 the Rev. Jacob S. Gubelmann D.D., were added to the faculty, and when, in 1889, Professor Rauschenbusch resigned his position, the Rev. Albert J. Ramaker, and in 1890 the Rev. Lewis Kaiser, were elected. Professor Schaeffer died in 1897 and the Rev. Walter Rauschenbusch was appointed his successor. Up to 1875 the course of instruction extended over three years, but was then lengthened to four years; in 1883 another year was added and still another in 1888, making the present course in the German Department of six years duration, of which the last three years are devoted exclusively to theological instruction.

At the time when the German Department was established, it was the only Baptist institution of its kind in the world. In the earlier years it, therefore attracted young Germans from across the ocean, a goodly number of whom, after having completed the course of instruction here, went back to labor in the Fatherland. The number of such graduates, who are still in the active ministry in Germany, Russia and South Africa, is twelve. There have also gone out from the German Department ten young men who have become foreign missionaries. The chief object of the German Department has, however, been to prepare young men for the work of preaching the Gospel to the Germans in our own country. In recent years a number of Slavs have been admitted, one of whom, after having taken a partial course, has recently been appointed to labor among the Poles in Detroit, Mich.; a few others, one of them a Lett, are still preparing for a similar work. It appears that the German Department can extend its usefulness by preparing the missionaries for other segments of our heterogeneous population until such a time when these missions shall be strong enough to undertake that work themselves.

SUMMARIES

The following summaries seek to give a general view of the main facts which are embodied in the foregoing pages. The summaries by classes, occupations, denominations and colleges include only the English department, while the summary by countries and the general summary at the end include the German department as well. The summaries by classes and occupations end with the year 1899, while the others include the undergraduate classes. In the summary by classes, under the head of matriculates, the figures following the plus sign indicate students in the partial course during the years 1853-83, students in the English course from 1884-1892, and special students since 1892.

THE SOCIETY OF ALUMNI

The Society of Alumni was organized in 1855, "to promote the mutual acquaintance and brotherly love of its members; to aid them in the performance of the duties of the Christian ministry; and to increase their interest in theological study." For many years the society has provided for an annual oration. The following list includes the names of all the officers of the society so far as the records have been preserved, with their respective terms of service

ROCHESTER THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

INTRODUCTORY NOTE

---

The Semi-Centennial Exercises of the Seminary were held from May 6th to May 10th, 1900. As appropriate to the following Historical Discourse, the program of these Exercises is included in the present publication.

HISTORICAL DISCOURSE

BY PRESIDENT AUGUSTUS H. STRONG.

The Theological Seminary of our day is an institution of American origin. By the term Theological Seminary, I mean a school which gives instruction in all the branches pertaining to divinity, and which presupposes, but does not itself give, a merely literary or scientific education. Europe in the middle ages had many monastic schools where scholastic divinity was mixed with a modicum of secular learning, and the continental and English universities gave to candidates for orders some opportunity to add Hebrew and theology to a much larger stock of other knowledge. But until the nineteenth century small progress had been made abroad toward differentiating sacred from secular studies, or toward establishing schools of theology upon the same basis as schools of law or medicine.

The lack of such schools has had its serious consequences. If Luther had instituted specific schools of divinity imbued with the spirit of the Reformation, instead of trusting the instruction of the churches to men educated in the old universities, the fruits of that great revival of religion might not have been lost and Germany might not so soon have swung off into rationalism. If Oxford and Cambridge had provided a thorough theological training after their undergraduates had taken their degrees in the classics and mathematics, we would not see so painful a dearth of doctrine in England, and textbooks so musty as Burnet on the Thirty-nine Articles, or Pearson on the Creed, would not continue to be the best representatives of English systematic divinity.

Of all the Theological Seminaries which now exist in the United States the oldest is that of the Dutch Reformed Church at New Brunswick, New Jersey. That Seminary was founded in 1784. A preparatory collegiate education was from the first required, before the student was permitted to enter upon his course of divinity, and Dr. John H. Livingston was for forty years the teacher of theology. It was not until 1808, or twenty-four years afterwards, that the first Theological Seminary of New England was established at Andover. The history of Andover is so important a part of the general history of education and of theology in this country, that I may be pardoned for according to it a somewhat more extended treatment.

The early life of New England was distinctly religious. One of the first acts of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay was to found a college at Cambridge which might educate youth after the pattern of Cambridge in Old England. It was in large part for the sake of training ministers of the gospel that the colonists gave out of their poverty, and thenceforth the church and the school went together. Though the first President of Harvard, Henry Dunster, was deposed because he could not sanction infant baptism, yet in 1722 Thomas Hollis of London, a distinguished merchant and a Baptist, endowed the Hollis Professorship of Divinity in that University, and instruction in theology formed part of the training of all its students. This training was long conducted on Calvinistic lines. But the Great Awakening under Jonathan Edwards, while on the whole it largely added to evangelical forces, did also repel many, and the Unitarian defection began. In 1805 the election of Henry Ware, a pronounced Unitarian, to the Hollis Professorship of Divinity filled the orthodox majority with alarm, and, as a barrier against what they thought an inflowing tide of error, they established in 1808 the Andover Theological Seminary, with Dr. Leonard Woods as its first professor.

The Constitution of Andover declares it to be established for those intending ministers of the gospel who have "honorably completed a course of liberal education," and a supplementary law of 1817 ordains that "a college education shall be ever deemed an essential condition of admission, except only in some rare cases of distinguished talents, information and piety." Let us praise the founders of Andover, not only for the example they set, but for the men they trained. Baptists owe to Andover such men as Adoniram Judson, Luther Rice, Irah Chase, Henry J. Ripley, Francis Wayland, Adiel Sherwood, Alva Woods, Solomon Peck, John Stevens, Samuel F. Smith, Milo P. Jewett, and Horatio B. Hackett.

It was perhaps a conviction that theology had a right to the best, it was perhaps the need of meeting the Andover movement by a corresponding advance, that led Harvard University in 1811 to begin a separate course of exercises in Divinity, with Dr. Henry Ware for its first professor, and Edward Everett for its first student. The very next year, or in 1812, Princeton followed, by establishing, side by side with its college, a distinct Theological Seminary, which had three pupils and Dr. Archibald Alexander as the only teacher. Ten years later, or in 1822, the Yale Divinity School, with Dr. Nathaniel W. Taylor for its sole professor, was set off as a separate department from the college. It was these American examples of distinctly theological schools which provoked the Scotch and the English to imitation, so that now we find a Wykliffe Hall at Oxford, a Ridley Hall at Cambridge, both belonging to the Established Church, and a multitude of Theological Colleges of other denominations scattered throughout the United Kingdom.

The Baptists of this country, as their growth was later than that of the standing order, and as they were subject to many and onerous civil disabilities, came naturally after the Dutch Reformed, the Congregationalists, the Unitarians, and the Presbyterians, in their founding of Theological Seminaries. From the beginning, however, there had been educated men among them. Roger Williams had been trained in the University of Cambridge, Morgan Edwards and William Stoughton were students of Bristol College, James Manning was a graduate of Princeton, John Clarke in the seventeenth century and Samuel Stillman in the eighteenth, though not college graduates, were learned men and friends of learning. Reverence for the Bible led Baptists to value education as a means of interpreting the Bible. So early as 1764 Baptists had founded Rhode Island College, which afterwards became Brown University. There many a young man was trained for the Baptist ministry. But it was not until 1825, or sixty-one years after the establishment of Brown, that Baptists had an exclusively theological institution. Newton led the way, following Yale only three years, Princeton thirteen, Harvard fourteen, Andover seventeen, and New Brunswick forty-one. It is the glory of Newton that for twenty-five years she furnished our denomination with its most advanced training and with many of its noblest preachers and leaders.

As Baptists made their way westward, they felt the need of local schools, instead of depending upon New England. The State of New York was no mean field for Baptist education. It was not to be expected, in those days of imperfect knowledge and financial weakness, that theological should have been separated from general culture. When, on the first of May, 1820, the Hamilton Literary and Theological Institution began its sessions in the third story of a brick building, the first story of which was occupied by the district school and the second by the Hamilton Academy, it attempted no new methods. It aimed at general preparation for the ministry. Theological training and literary training were given together. Daniel Haskall taught Rhetoric and Nathaniel Kendrick taught Theology. The institution admitted only those who purposed to preach the gospel, and among its first pupils were Jonathan Wade and Eugenio Kincaid, both of them afterwards for many years most successful missionaries in Burma and heroes of the Christian faith.

The Hamilton Literary and Theological Institution went on for nearly twenty years, or until 1839, before it opened its doors to those who sought a secular education. But a few years of experience in combining literary and theological instruction convinced its supporters that the two should be separated, and that a Theological Seminary should be constituted like that at Newton. In 1846, therefore, Madison University was incorporated, and the Hamilton Theological Seminary began a separate existence. Certain personal differences attending the change combined with the broadening horizon to suggest the thought that Hamilton was too rural a place, and too far removed from the routes of travel, to furnish the best centre of educational influence. A large majority of the Trustees of Madison University became persuaded that Rochester offered a better location, and an agitation for removal began, which soon involved every Baptist church in the State and was accompanied by bitter partisanship.

Except for the purposes of history, we might well prefer to pass over in silence many of the events of the next few years. We can fortunately now review them without passion, and can acknowledge that neither party was wholly free from blame. There can be little doubt that the sentiment of the denomination at large strongly favored removal. The Hamilton Trustees had failed in their effort to secure an endowment, and they believed that the unfortunate location of the institution was one of the main reasons for their failure. President Wayland of Brown University wrote a letter strongly urging a change. The people of Rochester became deeply interested. On the 22d of October, 1847, an Address was printed, signed by David R. Barton, William N. Sage, Elon Huntington, Henry W. Dean, and Alvah Strong, appealing to the Baptists of the State of New York to transfer their University and Seminary to this city. The arguments they urge are so striking, and the whole document so well illustrates the spirit of the movement, that I venture to quote a few sentences from it. They remind the denomination that twenty-seven years before, when the institution at Hamilton was founded :

“No Grand Canal or Railroad had determined the course of travel or trade, nor wrought their influence into the web of society.” Western New York was then a wilderness. “How great the change! Madison University is remote from our thoroughfares and most of the year difficult of access, only twenty miles from Clinton College—an older institution, and more likely to obtain students who expect to pay their own way except they have the ministry in view. Eastern and Central New York is filled with colleges and universities. Western New York, with six hundred thousand inhabitants, is without a college, except a small one at Geneva—a population nearly as large as Massachusetts, where three large and flourishing institutions are sustained.” It is proposed to establish the institution here upon a liberal and unsectarian basis. Such an institution would greatly influence the thirty thousand inhabitants of Rochester. “We seek $150,000 for grounds and buildings and for a partial endowment of Madison University. Let not the idea of losing our investments in the buildings at Hamilton deter you. We shall gain ten dollars where we lose one. Monroe County will raise $30,000, or more, of the above amount.”

There was a far-seeing wisdom in this scheme. Its projectors had no thought of two Universities or of two Theological Seminaries. They expected to keep our Baptist forces together and simply to remove Madison University to Rochester. As we read their address we cannot fail to be impressed by the zeal and enthusiasm of those who signed it, and by their evident sense of a divine mission. It rang through the State like a trumpet call. Our cities and villages were canvassed for subscriptions, as they never had been before and as they never have been since. Within six months, $50,000 were contributed in Western New York. By the first of January, 1851, from East and West there had been subscribed $142,000. Let us remember that this was at a time when our people had not a tenth part of their present means. The result can only be regarded as a wonderful example of enlightened and conscientious liberality.

Hamilton had been originally a mere training-school for the Baptist ministry. Young men who were preparing for secular vocations were after a time admitted. But the institution did not draw either its students or its support from other denominations of Christians. The more progressive among its friends now felt that Baptists ought to aim at something larger and broader than the education of their own membership. They thought themselves bound to do their part in the general culture of the community, to invite both pupils and financial aid from Presbyterians and Methodists and Episcopalians, and from those who belonged to no denomination at all. While they proposed to keep their Theological Seminary under the exclusive control of Baptists, they wisely concluded to give an influential share in the management of the University to Trustees and Professors of other than the Baptist faith. With this view the citizens of Rochester were appealed to. Public meetings were held and subscriptions were solicited. Every prominent name in Rochester and its vicinity can be found in the list of men who signed the calls or made the pledges. On that roll of honor I read these following: Henry E. Rochester, Addison Gardiner, William Pitkin, Frederick Whittlesey, Everard Peck, Elias Pond, Alexander Mann, Darius Perrin, Samuel D. Porter, Freeman Clarke, Levi A. Ward, Henry R. Selden, Jacob Gould, Henry Cook, L. Ward Smith, William W. Ely, E. Peshine Smith, Isaac Butts, Samuel Hamilton, William H. Perkins, Erastus Shepard, Isaac Hills, Thomas Kempshall, F. W. Holland, A. J. Brackett, J. B. Shaw, George F. Danforth, E. Darwin Smith. Only one man, so far as I know, sought immortality by declining to contribute. I shall not perpetuate his name,—I will only perpetuate his excuse. He had been asked to give upon the ground that he owed something to posterity. He replied that posterity had never done anything for him, and that he did not propose to do anything for posterity.

I have already mentioned the five men who started the agitation for removal by signing the address to the Baptists of the State of New York. They were David R. Barton, William N. Sage, Elon Huntington, Henry W. Dean and Alvah Strong. Let me now add to these the names of other Baptists who were deeply interested in the project of removal. In Rochester there were Pharellus Church, Oren Sage, Elijah F. Smith, Gideon W. Burbank, Ahira G. Fitch, Edwin Pancost, Justin A. Smith, Albert G. Smith. In the immediate vicinity were Roswell S. Burrows, Velona R. Hotchkiss, Lemuel C. Paine, Rawson Harmon. In the eastern part of the State were John N. Wilder, Ira Harris, Robert Kelly, William R. Williams, Friend Humphrey, Edward Bright, William L. Marcy, B. T. Welch, Smith Sheldon, E. E. L. Taylor, J. S. Backus, R. R. Raymond, H. C. Fish, A. B. Capwell, G. C. Baldwin. This is certainly a noble list of names. It comprises a majority of the intellectual, social and religious influence of the New York Baptists of that day.

This influence speedily asserted itself at Hamilton. The greater part of the Faculty and of the Trustees committed themselves to the change. But local interests were strong. Opposition was roused. A counter-appeal of the citizens of Hamilton was issued. And, as this Appeal is instructive from a historical point of view, I quote a few sentences from it, as I quoted from the address of the Citizens of Rochester. It begins by denying that Hamilton is inaccessible. It reminds the Baptist public that the village is only twenty-eight miles from Utica and twenty miles from Canastota, with three daily lines of stages. "We admit that part of the year the roads are bad. But in June and August, when Board meetings are held, they are for the most part remarkably good. A ride from Utica to Hamilton in the month of June or August, is considered by reasonable and cultivated people to be not only comfortable but highly interesting." "After the present season," the Appeal continues, "Every particle of weight in the objection will be extinguished, for an enterprise is now on foot to build a substantial plank-road from Utica to Hamilton, by which an easy and expeditious passage can be made between the two places at any time in the year." "We cannot deny that Hamilton is a village," they say, "but it has a new church costing $10,000." They regard a moral village as a far better location for an educational institution than can be furnished by a city of thirty thousand inhabitants, with all its temptations and vices, its monotonous prospect of paved streets, its larger cost of living, and its lack of opportunity for thought or meditation. They fear the aristocracy of a city. They urge that Dartmouth, Amherst and Williams are located in villages. Hamilton has stood for thirty years. Its hallowed memories must not be sacrificed. They cannot be transferred to Rochester. "The past at least is secure."

But the argument that proved of greatest weight was the legal argument. Six thousand dollars had been contributed at the foundation of the institution, on condition that it should be located at Hamilton. Removal would be a breach of faith with the dead. Since that original gift of six thousand dollars, at least twenty-five thousand had been added. By removal that sacred treasure must be sacrificed. And there was no necessity for removal, for the people of Hamilton were prepared to pledge fifteen thousand dollars for the repair of the school edifice then in use and for the putting up of a noble central building. These were the considerations that finally prevailed. It is a lesson for after times. The dead were permitted to rule the living. Instead of asking what the dead would do if they were now alive, their past dispositions were taken as incapable of improvement. The legal aspect of the case was insisted on, to the exclusion of the moral. The local interest came to override the universal. The village triumphed over the State.

For a long time the advocates of removal held on in their manful struggle. They urged that the College and the Seminary belonged to the Baptists of the State of New York, and not simply to the Baptists of Hamilton. A meeting of Baptists was held in New York City on the sixth of January, 1848, at which resolutions written by Dr. William R. Williams were adopted. These resolutions declared that an endowment of $150,000 was imperatively needed; that, if Western New York would furnish $75,000 of this amount, the eastern part of the State ought to furnish the remainder; that, with these sums subscribed, the institution ought to be removed to Rochester; and that, with the expectation of raising the whole amount, the Legislature of the State be petitioned to give the Trustees of Madison University the power to remove.

About three months later, or on the third of April, 1848, the Removal Act passed the Legislature, and, with the signature of the Governor, became a law. It had been amended, however, at the instance of the citizens of Hamilton, so that it was virtually a compromise measure. It permitted the Trustees of the University to remove the institution only in case the friends of the former location should fail to raise the sum of $50,000 for endowment by the first day of August, following. This the citizens of Hamilton failed to do. When the University Board met in Hamilton on the 12th of August, 1848, only $30,000 had been subscribed by the people of Hamilton, while $50,000 was offered by Syracuse, and $100,000 in valid pledges by Rochester. The Board therefore, by a vote of twelve to six, resolved to accept the Rochester offer and to remove the University to that city. This however was made conditional upon the concurrence of the Board of the Education Society. That Board concurred, by a vote of twenty to two. No further step was needed, but the action of the Education Society itself. That Society on the fifteenth of August, 1848, adopted the first removal resolution by a vote of fifty-four to nineteen, and the second by a vote of twenty-one to ten.

The advocates of removal were in all their action convinced that they were proceeding in a perfectly legal manner. They had the elaborate opinion of Chancellor Walworth sustaining the legal and constitutional right of both the University and the Education Society to remove. The officers of the Board therefore filed the resolution to remove in the office of the Secretary of State, and thus, as they supposed, consummated the legislative act of removal. The opponents of removal, however, did not submit. They carried the matter into the courts. They objected that the action of the Education Society was illegal, that the majority in its favor had been obtained by the exclusion of members of the Society who had the right to vote. The fact was that, at the Annual Meeting, as many as forty persons residing in Hamilton, some of them strangers to our denomination, availing themselves of the easy terms of membership and of the holding of the meeting in their own village, came in unexpectedly and suddenly on the payment of a dollar each, and claimed the right to vote. The object was undisguised; it was to vote down the resolutions in favor of removal, which the Board had recommended to the adoption of the Society. Their votes were refused, from a conviction that they were taking advantage of the letter of the Constitution to violate its spirit. The opponents of removal objected to the action of the Education Society, also, upon the ground that the final decision had been reached at an adjourned meeting held before the appointed time, and before the opposing party had arrived. Its advocates declared that they simply took advantage of a tardiness for which they were not responsible, at a time when delay would have given their opponents opportunity to bring in a new set of extemporized members, and still further to endanger a just verdict.

We must grant that there was sharp practice on both sides. We cannot defend all that was done by the advocates of removal. Their excuse was that they must oppose artifice with artifice. Perhaps it would have been better to let the opposing party have its way. Nothing but desire for union prevented them from taking this course. The result was simply to widen the breach between the two parties. The friends of Hamilton appealed to the Courts. Injunctions were issued forbidding the two Boards to proceed further in the matter of removal. Upon the grounds already mentioned, the election of Trustees by the Education Society was set aside. This enabled the Hamilton people to elect Boards to suit themselves. They passed a resolution permanently locating the institution at Hamilton. The people of that village seemed to have the legal right to control the educational affairs of the whole denomination throughout the state.

The former Boards of the University and of the Education Society had meantime adjourned to meet at Albany on the twelfth of June, 1849. Here their meetings were interrupted by an order of the Supreme Court, and an informal educational meeting was held instead. After discussing the whole situation, it was resolved to call a Convention of the Baptists of New York to meet in that same city of Albany four months later, and, in the language of the call, "to consider the present aspect of the educational affairs of the denomination in the State, and to take such action thereon as may be deemed wise and expedient." This Convention assembled on the ninth day of October, 1849. It was the largest and most representative assemblage that our denomination in the State had ever known. Almost without exception our strongest men were present, and there were six hundred delegates in all.

This representative Convention unanimously recommended that the friends of Hamilton surrender their University Charter, and that Madison University be transferred to Rochester; that, with this understanding, Rochester relinquish its project of a Theological Seminary, and that the Seminary be retained at Hamilton; if, however, Hamilton should refuse to give up its University, Rochester should establish both a new University and a new Seminary. This conclusion was a compromise, but it was accepted by all with joy: For a time the whole controversy appeared settled. But only two months later, on December 4th and 5th, 1849, the Board of the Education Society at Hamilton declined to accede to the recommendation of the Convention or to surrender its University Charter. The Committee appointed to urge upon Hamilton the discontinuance of its legal opposition to removal reported that they had not succeeded; they reported a plan for a new University and a new Education Society, as the Convention had advised; and they resolved to submit this plan to a second State Educational Convention to be held at Rochester on the eleventh of May, 1850.

At that second Convention, Judge Ira Harris of Albany was Chairman. Roswell S. Burrows of Albion, for the Committee, presented the plan for a Collegiate and also for a Theological Institution to be located in the City of Rochester, and the plan was adopted. Steps were taken to secure from the Regents a Charter for the University of Rochester. The Convention proceeded to form the New York Baptist Union for Ministerial Education, and to elect its first officers and trustees. Forty scholarships for ministerial students in the University were granted to the Union, provided that persons who should subscribe an aggregate of $40,000 for the endowment of the University should also consent that their subscriptions be thus appropriated—a condition which the University Board, on the seventh of July, 1857, declared to have been complied with. The Convention, which we may properly call the Constitutional Convention, recommended the Trustees to fill the chairs of instruction and to open the institution at the earliest practicable period, and also "to draft a calm and full presentation, for the use of the churches of our State, of the considerations under the solemn pressure of which we have been shut up to the formation of the new University and of the Union for Ministerial Education".

So the University of Rochester and the Rochester Theological Seminary were, in the providence of God, launched for their voyage. The people of Hamilton predicted that these new institutions would soon suffer shipwreck, and the people of Rochester in their turn half expected to hear that Madison University had been destroyed by fire from heaven. Neither event has taken place. We cannot cease to regret that our forces are divided, and that we are two instead of one. We still feel that a measure of blame attaches to those who, however conscientiously, permitted legal and local considerations so to blind them that the larger and ultimate interests were lost sight of. The result has been a costly one for the Baptists of the State, and has compelled them to support two colleges instead of one. But we must recognize, with all this, the good hand of God which has gradually smoothed down the asperity of feeling, has made each institution a means of stimulus to the other, and has made the two, in their different constituencies and by their different types of culture, the means of accomplishing some things for the cause of education and for the kingdom of Christ which neither one of them singly could have done. There was something of wrath in our beginnings, and the wrath of man does not work the righteousness of God. Yet this seems to be a case in which God has made the wrath of man to praise him, while with the remainder of wrath he has girded himself.

Before I pass on to relate the actual opening of the Theological Seminary, I must set before you a half dozen portraits of the founders, that you may know what manner of men they were. Of all that list of officers fifty years ago, only one yet remains with us, Edward Lathrop of New York. During all this half century he has served us as Vice President of the Union. For many years a distinguished pastor in the metropolis, and still Chairman of the Board of Trustees of Vassar College, we rejoice that his hand has not yet lost its cunning, nor his tongue its eloquence, nor his mind its wisdom, nor his heart its warmth. Long may he yet live, a visible link of connection with a glorious past, and an object-lesson to shame us if we ever become degenerate sons of noble sires.

You will not expect me to speak of men whose interest and work were more immediately with the University of Rochester, though many there were who gave to the Seminary a place in their gifts and affections only second to that which they bestowed upon the College. Their memory will be preserved in the annals of the University which they loved. Let me mention the first President of our Ministerial Union, William R. Williams. Tall of stature and with a manner finely sensitive and gracious, the lines of study in his expressive features and a soft music in every cadence of his voice, he was our model of a scholarly preacher, a devoted pastor, and a cultivated man. Always thinking others better than himself and declining academic positions where he might have achieved a brilliant success, yet occasionally in times of great national or denominational stress and danger flaming out in speech that thundered as well as lightened, he thought no calling so great as the ministry, and he bore himself so meekly in it as to impress upon all who knew him the greatness of humility and self-sacrifice.

There were two Vice Presidents besides our Dr. Lathrop, whose names present a marked contrast to each other. They were Alfred Bennett and Bartholomew T. Welch. Alfred Bennett was the old fashioned pioneer preacher, whose lack of early education was more than made up by sturdy sense, a deep Christian experience, and a mighty grip upon the doctrines of grace. No man ever did more for the Baptist cause and for the cause of Christ in the State of New York than did he, in those early days when under his preaching thousands of people in our new settlements were made to feel first a deep concern for their own souls and then a deep concern for the souls of others. If our churches believe in revivals and in missions today, they owe it largely to the labors, sixty, seventy, eighty years ago, of Alfred Bennett. I am glad to say that his subscription of one hundred dollars was the first one paid to the University, and that it was he who preached the Sermon before the New York Baptist Union for Ministerial Education at the time when the Seminary was opened. The old man spoke in great weakness; I am not sure that he ever preached again; if so, he left a noble last will and testament, for his text was Jeremiah 9:24, and his theme: "The Knowledge of the Lord, the true Basis and the highest End of Education."

Bartholomew T. Welch, too, was a man made for the pulpit, of emotional temperament and extraordinary flow of language. Reason and imagination were unusually combined in his utterance. In Brooklyn and in Albany he drew great crowds to hear him. There was a silvery clearness to his articulation, and a pathos in his tones, which had great resemblance to those of John B. Gough. At the capital of the State members of the Legislature and professional men came a half hour before his services in order to secure seats in the house of worship. And he gave them the gospel—the simple truths of sin and salvation, and many were turned to the Lord. Dr. Welch was a great preacher for the city, as Alfred Bennett was a great preacher for the country.

As I come to the original Trustees of the Seminary I am tempted unduly to expand my discourse, for I find the names of A. G. Smith, H. E. Smith, J. A. Smith, S. S. Cutting, William Phelps, Lemuel C. Paine. I can only mention that born teacher and elegant classical scholar, from whom I got the little Latin and less Greek with which I went to college—I mean N. W. Benedict. Mild in discipline, faithful to his pupils, a pillar in the church, his influence as Principal of the old Collegiate Institute reminds me of Jean Paul's saying with regard to the obscure teachers of village schools: "They fall from notice like the spring blossoms, but they fall that the fruit may be born." And I can only mention another man of remarkable force and magnetism, a natural orator and a natural organizer, a counsellor in matters of weight and difficulty, who has had no superior among us,—I refer to E. E. L. Taylor. He gave to church building and to our home mission work the ripe powers of his manhood. He gave to this Seminary the wisdom of his long experience. But he did even better by giving to us his son, and through us to the ministry and to Vassar College, one whom we delight to honor.

Let me speak a little more at length of two members of that first Board of Trustees upon whom at the start fell the heaviest burdens, and who bore those burdens year after year until they died—I allude now to Oren Sage and to Alvah Strong. Neither one of them had had the advantages of education; both were plain men, but both were godly and generous; both were resolved that those who came after them should have better advantages than they. In Dr. Northrup's sermon at the funeral of Oren Sage, thirty four years ago, he speaks of his singleness and nobility of purpose, his loyalty to Christ, his determination to speak of the glory of his King, to labor for the triumph of his cause. With great force of will he combined a glowing emotional life. How often with brokenness of heart and tears of joy have I heard him speak of the mighty Sufferer who saved others but could not save himself! There seemed never to be a time when he was not ready to say with the poet :

“ 'Tis love, 'tis love; thou dieidst for me,
I hear thy whisper in my heart.”

He was devoted to the church, and felt a peculiar responsibility for its prosperity. He loved the souls of men, and no day passed in which he did not personally urge some one of them to accept the Savior. I remember his stopping me, when I was a boy of twelve years, in the middle of State street as I was crossing, laying his hand affectionately on my shoulder, and expressing his earnest desire that I might become a Christian.

For his means he was a great and continual giver. He was a most successful solicitor of the gifts of others. The original subscription for the University was successful mainly through the efforts of John N. Wilder and of Oren Sage. But when the Theological Seminary began its sessions, he gave his heart chiefly to that. The young men studying for the ministry drew out his best affections. He was made the chairman of our Executive Committee. As he had more of worldly goods than others, he had a heavy load to bear. Solicitation for the University had almost exhausted the sources of supply, and our people had little left to give. Many a time in those early days the meeting of the Committee found bills accumulated, but no money in the treasury. The question stared the brethren in the face: “Shall we send away our students and close our doors!” Then Deacon

Sage would say: "First, let us pray." All would kneel, while the Deacon poured out his soul in prayer and tears to God. Then they would rise, and brother Sage would put his name to a note at the bank, and the money would be borrowed to carry the institution on.

As Deacon Oren Sage was the first Chairman of the Executive Committee, so Deacon Alvah Strong was the first Treasurer of the Board of Trustees. I must be reticent in speaking of my own father, and yet I wish to add a little section to history. He was, like Isaac of old, a man of peace, yet a man of principle; somewhat broad in his views, and of unusually tolerant and judicial mind; with healthy emotion, but not over-sensitive; a lover of his kind, yet prone to listen rather than to speak. His only academy was the country school, his only college the newspaper counting-room. Not a profound thinker, nor a skilled writer, nor a practised speaker, nor a master of social usages, he was a modest and honest man, careful of the feelings of others, with great persistency of purpose, some inventive and organizing ability, and the inflexible determination to use what gifts he had for the glory of God and the good of the world. He was a Christian man, with no brilliant experience, but with a gentleness, kindness and reverence which were unfailing. He talked to others concerning their duty to serve Christ. He was a good deacon, for he sought out the neglectful, visited the poor, made himself to the measure of his ability a helper of the pastor and of the church.

He had undeveloped gifts of rhetoric, and an ardent love for knowledge. His very lack of the higher education made him eagerly welcome and steadfastly support the new institutions in Rochester. When he was worth no more than $10,000 he subscribed $1,000 toward the endowment of the University, and he gave material assistance in securing subscriptions from others. When he died he left less than $50,000, yet he bequeathed $5,000, or a tenth of his property, to the Seminary. During all his last years he served as member of our Committee on Rooms and Fixtures, and was constant in his care for all the external affairs of the institution. For many a need he provided out of his own pocket, letting not his left hand know what was done by his right. But he contributed more than money,—he gave to all who came in contact with him, and to me also, something of his spirit of hopefulness, and the faith that, whatever may betide, all things shall work together for good to them that love God.

I must not fail to speak of the first Corresponding Secretary, Zenas Freeman. He was a fervid soul who came out of the great Hamilton tribulation with an unwavering conviction that Rochester represented the cause of truth and righteousness. He had a warm heart and an irrepressible oratory. He could so depict the needs of students as to draw tears from the eyes and money from the pockets of the Baptist brethren. All the money that he received he scrupulously paid in. But brother Freeman was not good at accounts. When it came to locating contributions and crediting them to their proper donors, his books were in a tangle and his memory could not unravel the snarl. As my father was the Treasurer and I was the Treasurer's clerk, I learned some useful lessons of Seminary finance. But the Annual Reports of Zenas Freeman and his appeals to the churches did much to educate the Baptists of Western New York and to draw to the Seminary young men whom God had called to the Christian ministry.

The University and the Seminary are twins,—they came into the world together. They are not Siamese twins, organically and inseparably united. The Seminary is not necessarily a Rochester institution. The founders, in the Constitution which they adopted, make no mention of any particular location, but simply say that the New York Baptist Union shall sustain a Theological School with suitable number of Professors. The wisest advocates of the present location contemplated the possibility that at some future time Rochester might cease to be the most desirable place for its work, just as Hamilton had already been judged undesirable. And, in order that no obstacles to removal might ever be interposed such as had prevented removal from Hamilton, it was provided in that Constitution that "in case of local or important questions, including the election of Trustees, the decision shall be had by votes of Churches; and, in such case, one annual or life member or delegate shall speak for the churches respectively. . . . Any three members of the Union may ask that a question be treated as thus local or important in character, and the preliminary vote whether such be its character, shall also be decided by votes of churches." Thus even the city was prevented from tyrannizing over the State. Fifty years ago Dr. Williams and Dr. Maginnis had serious thoughts of New York City as an ultimate location, but yielded the Seminary to Rochester as commanding Western New York and as furnishing at least for a time the best constituency.

The University and the Seminary not only began life together, but for some years lived peaceably in the same house. On the first Monday in November, 1850, both institutions opened their sessions in the building, on West Main Street, formerly known as the United States Hotel, but now leased and newly fitted up for a lecture-hall and a dormitory. The University had, as professors, Asahel C. Kendrick, John F. Richardson, John H. Raymond, Chester Dewey and Samuel S. Greene. The Seminary had two professors: John S. Maginnis, Professor of Biblical and Pastoral Theology, and Thomas J. Conant, Professor of Biblical Criticism and Interpretation. While there were sixty-six students in the University, there were twenty-four in the Seminary. These beginnings were humble, yet so much had been accomplished in so short a time, that "Ralph Waldo Emerson, according to Mr. Wilder, used it as an illustration of Yankee enterprise, saying that a landlord in Rochester had an old hotel which he thought would rent for more as a university,—so he put in a few books, sent for a coach-load of professors, bought some philosophical apparatus, and, by the time green peas were ripe, had graduated a large class of students."

I take this report of Mr. Emerson's talk from the "Outline History of the University of Rochester" written fourteen years ago by Professor J. H. Gilmore. The first class of students graduated from the Seminary was not a large one. It consisted of six members, Joseph A. Bailey, Erastus H. Burr, Peter Irving, Charles Keyser, Henry M. Richardson, and William W. Sawyer. Of these only two survive, whom we to our great joy have with us this morning—brethren Richardson and Sawyer—both of them having served for many years as good ministers of Jesus Christ. Of the original professors neither one is now living. Dr. Maginnis taught a little less than two years when death removed him. Dr. Conant held on for seven years, and then gave himself wholly to the work of Bible translation. The real greatness of the Seminary began when Ezekiel G. Robinson became its professor of Theology, in April, 1853. Hotchkiss, Northrup, Rauschenbusch, Buckland, Hackett, Schäffer, successively added to our strength; but, of them all, only Dr. George W. Northrup is left in the land of the living.

There were giants in those days. The people of Rochester were obliged to look up to the representatives of these new institutions when nine men of the stature of Maginnis and Richardson and Kendrick and Robinson and Anderson and Rauschenbusch and Northrup and Wayland and Buckland walked their streets. Difficult as is the task, I must try to set before you those of the number who had special connection with the Seminary and exerted a marked influence upon it. The first of them was Dr. John S. Maginnis, our original professor of Biblical Theology. He was a man of aristocratic nature and bearing. Born in 1805, he was educated at Brown and at Newton; he had been pastor at Portland, Maine, and at Providence, Rhode Island; he had held the Professorship of Theology at Hamilton for twelve years; he was one of the coach-load of professors who emigrated from Hamilton to Rochester,—the others being Thomas J. Conant, John F. Richardson, Asahel C. Kendrick, and John H. Raymond. Dr. Maginnis was tall, but bent, with weak voice and many infirmities of body, but he had a clear mind and much force as a teacher. He held tenaciously to the stiffest Princeton theology, and like Dr. Hodge declared it to be not only the doctrine of the Scripture but the doctrine of the Church of God semper, ubique, et ab omnibus. In his younger days he must have been an inspiring preacher, for a delegation from the English Baptists reported to their brethren that he was the best example of pulpit oratory which they had heard in America. In Rochester he was past his prime, yet his students revered him for his power of lucid expression, his grasp of systematic truth, his high-bred courtesy, and his unaffected piety. His death was sincerely mourned, and Dr. William R. Williams, par nobile fratrum, preached his funeral sermon.

Dr. Thomas J. Conant, professor of Biblical Criticism and Interpretation, was also an importation from Hamilton, where he had been teaching for fifteen years. He was forty eight years of age when he came to Rochester, and he had made for himself already the reputation of being one of the greatest Hebrew scholars in America. Robust in health and capable of endless endurance, he was a very model of German thoroughness and learning. He could work twelve or even sixteen hours out of the twenty four; and, when I asked him how he found time for physical exercise, he replied that he had long since ceased to feel the need of it. So he worked till the end of life. His translation of Gesenius's Hebrew Grammar made a name for the Seminary as well as for himself, and his annotated versions of Job, Matthew, and Genesis, are still unsurpassed as exact reproductions in English of the original Scriptures.

But our greatest man was Ezekiel G. Robinson. He did most to impress upon the Seminary a definite character. Commanding in figure and somewhat austere in manner, there was yet a heart within that chilling exterior. At the funeral of a child, I have heard his voice break so that he could scarcely proceed in his address. The student who thought him brusque and savage in the class-room found afterwards that he was as much interested in his progress and success as if he had been the student's own father. Men feared him, and yet they loved him better than he knew. It was hard to tell him their obligations to him, because he had such a shrinking from praise. He had a noble scorn of laziness and of tergiversation. He presented a magnificent example of extemporaneous speaking, and this, quite as much as his instructions in homiletics, made the graduates of those days true preachers of the gospel.

But it was in the class-room that he most shone. The Theological Seminaries of that day were not the Theological Seminaries of to-day. There was much copying of lectures dictated by professors from yellow and thumb-worn manuscripts. There was little or no opportunity for question and free discussion. Dr. Robinson changed all this. When he was elected Professor in 1853, he had not yet settled his views of theology; he put himself side by side with his students as an inquirer; together they fought their way toward fixed convictions. This gave a freshness to his teaching. Freedom of criticism had no limit. He learned from his students, as well as his students from him. But he never, even to the end of his days, gave them a fully rounded and complete system of theology,—it is doubtful whether he ever worked out such a system for himself. He was more critical than constructive; his chief merit is that he taught his pupils to think for themselves; so he put life and reality into the ministry.

Plato declared himself thankful for three things, first that he was born a rational being, secondly that he was born a Greek, and thirdly that he was born in the time of Socrates. Personal influences are the strongest in education; let us be thankful if we have ever been the pupils of even one great teacher. Such a teacher was Dr. Robinson. When he was made President of the Seminary in 1868, after having served thirteen years as Professor, the Seminary honored itself quite as much as it honored him. He has left a marked impression both upon the doctrinal conceptions and upon the homiletical methods of all our ministry. His views of moral law as unchangeable, because an expression of the inmost nature of God, and his realistic views of our relation to Adam and to Christ, were far in advance of the theology current in the Baptist pulpits of his day, and they have led to a more Scriptural and at the same time a more rational faith. His love for reality showed itself not only in his abandonment of the theology of legal fiction, but also in his adoption of the most direct, natural and incisive methods of pulpit address. I believe it not too much to say that in these respects he changed the whole face of our denomination. If as a people we have intellectual freedom, breadth and power to-day, it is largely through the professional teaching and the personal example of Ezekiel G. Robinson.

It is painful to think with what difficulties he had to contend, and what sacrifices he had to make. He began his work with a salary of $1,200; after fourteen years the salary was increased to $2,000; when he was chosen President it became $4,000. To eke out his support he preached on the Sundays, often riding the preceding nights to reach his destination. Besides his teaching and preaching, he was constantly laboring to secure aid for students and to increase the endowment funds of the Seminary. He revised the translation of Neander's History of the Planting and Training of the Christian Church, and he edited the Christian Review, as mere incidental tasks when not otherwise occupied. It is no wonder that these burdens told upon his strength and that, when the invitation came, he decided to accept the Presidency of Brown University. But he gave us nineteen years of inestimably precious service, and during those years he did more than any other man has ever done to make the Rochester Theological Seminary what it is.

Dr. Velona R. Hotchkiss became professor of Biblical Literature at the departure of Dr. Conant. He had a large and successful pastoral experience both in this city and in Buffalo. Nervously constituted and with an insatiable thirst for learning, he was a rare example of erudition in the ministry. He knew his Hebrew Bible and his Greek Testament as he knew his English, and his great ambition was to make the Scriptures known to others. He taught Hebrew and Greek in the Seminary for the eleven years from 1854 to 1865; and, though he believed in the universality of the deluge and in the creation of the world in six literal days of twenty-four hours each, he communicated his own enthusiasm for Bible study to each of his pupils, inspiring them with the conviction that there were inexhaustible treasures in the word of God, and that it was their privilege and duty to bring out from those treasures for the instruction of God's people things both new and old. He was himself a remarkable example of expository preaching. No student who ever heard his discourses on the Transfiguration and on the Fifty-third Chapter of Isaiah could fail to be influenced for life.

What shall I say of Dr. George W. Northrup? It has been my purpose in general to avoid extended account of the living. But Dr. Northrup's work in his Professorship and in the First Baptist Church of Rochester was so unique and valuable that it belongs to the history of the institution, and the one cannot be related without the other. He brought to us a new element—an element much needed, but not before represented in our Seminary life—I mean the contemplative, the spiritual, the mystical in its highest and best sense. Dr. Robinson was intellectual, critical, stimulating, and Dr. Northrup was not lacking in these qualities. But he added an emotional intensity, an aspiration after God, a sense of dependence, a conscious communion with Christ, which were not so manifest in Dr. Robinson. I shall never forget Dr. Northrup's prayers at the beginning of his lectures—plaintive cries of the child for the guidance of its Father—nor his rousing himself from reverie, when he thought himself alone, with the words: "Oh, that I could be like God!"

His life in Rochester was marked by some extraordinary experiences, comparable only to those of Tennant and of the apostle Paul, when he seemed to himself caught up into the seventh heaven and made the recipient of communications which are beyond the power of human tongue to utter. I was myself a member of the first class he taught in Ecclesiastical History. I have sometimes told him, in a half jest, that he never taught so well afterwards. I meant only that his agonizing struggle at that time to know the truth, and the absolute candor with which he welcomed every suggestion of his students, set us to work, as dogmatic teaching never could have done. We learned a method of investigation, that was better than ready-made doctrine. Our reverence for the man helped our studies. The great revival of religion which followed his supply of the pulpit of the First Baptist Church of Rochester had the effect of sending into the ministry many Seminary students who all their lives long looked back to him as an object-lesson for the conduct of evangelistic work. When he became President of the Theological Seminary in Chicago, after his ten years of service here from 1857 to 1867, Rochester mourned his loss, but for Chicago it was great gain, for all that has followed there may not improperly be said to be due to him.

Dr. R. J. W. Buckland, who succeeded Dr. Northrup in the chair of Church History and who held the place for seven years until his lamented death in 1876, was a man of totally different type from his predecessor. Gracious yet dignified in manner, he brought into the Seminary a certain air of science and society which had hitherto been lacking. He came from an important pastorate in New York city. But he was variously learned. He believed in a kingdom of God in nature as well as in the soul. The revelations of the telescope and of the microscope attracted him. He was an omnivorous reader, and a man of indomitable industry. He told me that he could work more hours in the day, more days in the week, and more weeks in the year, than any man he knew. His main study was history, and his aim seemed to be to bring the history of the kingdom of God down to twelve o'clock on the particular day on which he lectured. But he forgot the needs of the body. Suddenly that strong frame succumbed to disease; and he was not, for God took him. But he did not live or teach in vain; for to Dr. Buckland, fifteen years after, was dedicated a certain "Short History of the Baptists," in grateful remembrance of that broad scholarship and kindling enthusiasm that first inspired Dr. Vedder to study Baptist History.

The last of our English professors of whom I can give any extended account is Dr. Horatio B. Hackett. I well remember Dr. Robinson's joy when this eminent scholar was persuaded to come to Rochester. He had had a brilliant career at Newton; his reputation was European as well as American; minute accuracy, entire lucidity, sometimes a quiet elegance, sometimes a passionate eloquence, characterized his teaching. As modest as he was devout, he pursued the even tenor of his way, ambitious only to bring all the lights of linguistics and archæology, of exploration and of art, to bear upon the interpretation of Scripture. He was sometimes criticized for generalizing too little, for avoiding doctrinal conclusions, for confining attention to limited areas of the Bible. But his students learned what absolute thoroughness of investigation was; learned to express precisely the results to which they had arrived; learned to stand for the scientifically attained teaching of Scripture as authoritative and final. During the five years of his work here he added to the fame he had won by his Commentary on the Acts, the still greater fame of editing the American edition of Smith's Bible Dictionary, and he filled up his days with usefulness, for he taught on the very day that he died.

In 1850 the German Baptist Churches of the United States were only eight in number. But they were growing; they had a missionary spirit; they demanded pastors and evangelists with some degree of training. It was to meet this demand that in 1852 the German Department of the Seminary was organized. The beginnings were small. For several years instruction was given by German pastors such as the Rev. A. Heinrich, and by undergraduate students in the University and in the English Department, such as brother Philip W. Bickel. The first teacher whose name appears in our catalogue was Professor Albert H. Mixer, who was at the same time giving instruction in the chair of Modern Languages in the University. Professor Mixer taught from 1855 to 1858. He was during those years the only teacher.

He began with eight students, and he ended with eleven. Let us never despise the day of small things, for the first name in the list of graduates from the German Department is that of Dr. Philip W. Bickel, for many years the head of our Theological Seminary in Hamburg, Germany, and now the manager of our Baptist Publication Society in that country, while among the number taught by Professor Mixer during his three years of service were Julius C. Haselhuhn, Jacob S. Gubelmann, and Conrad Bodenbender, brethren whose praise is in all the churches.

It was not until 1858 that this Department of the Seminary had the entire time of even a single instructor. In that year Professor Augustus Rauschenbusch began a work which lasted without interruption for thirty years. Though he was not present at the beginning, he may still be said to be the father of the German Baptist interest in this country, for it is his work and influence, more than any other human agency, which has raised up a German Baptist ministry, and has caused the eight German Baptist churches of fifty years ago to multiply until they now number two hundred and forty-three.

Professor Rauschenbusch was a natural teacher. A pupil of Neander at Berlin, and a Lutheran pastor in Germany, he heard the call of his exiled countrymen in the back woods of America, and with the truest missionary zeal he left home and country to give them the gospel. Here he became a Baptist. His University training, his varied learning, and his gifts as a teacher, marked him as conspicuously fitted for the training of German young men for the ministry. He began his work on a salary of $600. He taught English and German, Latin and Greek, geology, botany, astronomy, natural history, grammar and rhetoric, homiletics and theology, the Old Testament and the New, the history of the world and the history of the church, with readings from the poets, the criticism of sermons, lectures on manners and morals, and occasional expeditions for the raising of money.

He could not have done all this if he had not had a well-stored mind, astonishing endurance, and an inner impulse to impart what he knew to others. When a friend asked Charles Lamb whether he had ever heard Coleridge preach, Lamb replied that he had never hear Coleridge do anything else. So one might say of Professor Rauschenbusch that he was never known to do anything else than to teach. He could not help teaching, and that with an enthusiasm that roused the dullest of pupils. He tolerated no inattention. As he himself was, so he expected every student to be, totus in illis. It was the German type of instruction; it demanded patience and docility in the student; but patience and docility were rewarded. His thirty years of service bore great fruit. The ministers of the gospel trained by him have gone to every quarter of the land and of the globe, and they have carried everywhere sound doctrine and a profound reverence for the Scriptures. That our German churches are so evangelical and so spiritual to-day is largely due to the influence of Professor Augustus Rauschenbusch.

And, now that I am speaking of the German Department, let me not forget to mention Professor Hermann M. Schäffer, who entered upon his labors as Professor of the New Testament in 1872, and continued to teach until his death in 1898. No other man has done so much as he for the material welfare of the Department. He was an optimist, and a believer in the power of a cheerful face and a resolute will. He could get people to give money, because he always took No to mean Yes, and, after he had been peremptorily refused, soon came again with the self-same plea for aid. Human nature could not forever resist his appeals. He was an excellent teacher, as the men whom he prepared for our English Department again and again demonstrated to us. But he was even a better manager and administrator. The noble edifice called the German Students' Home would never have been built, if it had not been for his collection of the needful funds. It almost broke his heart, when he found that successive efforts to raise a German Endowment Fund of $100,000 resulted only in apparent failure. It was anxiety, indeed, that brought him to his grave. Yet his very death brought the answer to his prayers. Like Samson, he slew more in his dying than in his life; for, moved by compunction, men gave then who had refused to give before; and at last the long effort, that had cost Professor Schäffer his life, was crowned with success.

The mention of the German endowment suggests the general subject of the financial progress of the Seminary. As has been already indicated, the first attempts to provide for its material wants were hampered by the fact that the University of Rochester had already reaped the field, so that the Seminary could only glean what remained. Many who gave to the University, moreover, gave with the view of helping the cause of ministerial education, and they were surprised when a second appeal was made for specifically theological training. The Seminary was often confounded with the University. Legacies and gifts really intended for the Seminary were through misunderstanding paid over to the University. It was difficult to convince the public that two institutions occupying the same building and supported by the same denomination were totally distinct from one another, having different faculties, bodies of students, and boards of control. It is easy to see how an element of friction was introduced between the two institutions; how they became competitors for subscriptions; how the friends of the Seminary began to fear that it might be so overshadowed by the University as to lose its independence; how two noble men like Dr. Robinson and Dr. Anderson, originally fast friends, came to be somewhat jealous of each other's influence.

While the University of Rochester began its sessions in November, 1850, with $140,000 subscribed for its endowment, the Seminary began its existence with ten or twelve temporary scholarships of seventy dollars each—aggregating some seven hundred dollars, and with a little over three hundred dollars paid into the treasury for other purposes. The first report of the Trustees says encouragingly that board could be obtained of the janitor at $1.50 per week, and that several brethren in the city had offered to take students into their families to board through the year without expense. My father was one of these men of hospitable mind. Yet twenty-six young men were received by the society as beneficiaries, and it was solemnly voted that no worthy young man who gave evidence of being called by God to the ministry should for lack of funds be denied beneficiary aid. If ever an institution was started in naked faith that God would provide, it was the Rochester Theological Seminary, for its total assets at the beginning, in money and subscriptions, could not have greatly exceeded one thousand dollars. It was wholly without invested funds, and was dependent upon the churches for means to defray its current expenses as well as to support its students.

The first effort to raise an endowment aimed at a fund of only seventy-five thousand dollars. The Rev. Zenas Freeman, at the end of his eight years of service as our Corresponding Secretary, had succeeded in securing sixty thousand dollars of this sum. Archibald Servoss followed in the secretaryship and held office for three years. But it was not till Dr. Robinson threw himself into the breach, and added the duties of secretary to his professorship, that the whole amount was raised. Dr. Robinson's labors were so successful that in 1868 the Board of Trustees reported an aggregate endowment fund of $103,666, of which $80,841 was invested and $22,825 consisted in unpaid subscriptions. At the close of Dr. Robinson's services as President and Professor in 1872, and when the Seminary was just twenty-two years old, the Treasurer of the Union, Mr. Cyrus F. Paine, reported the endowment funds as amounting to $113,750, of which $106,275 was invested, and $7,475 consisted in interest-bearing subscriptions. New pledges, however, had been made, in response to the solicitations of Dr. Robinson, and Mr. James D. Reid, who had taken upon himself the work of Secretary, reported that these pledges would increase the endowment fund to over $200,000.

It was in this year, 1872, or twenty-eight years ago, that the present incumbent, with great self-distrust, took Dr. Robinson's place when that great man and great teacher left the Seminary to become President of Brown University. I had not been long in my position before I found that the salaries of our professors as well as my own salary failed to be paid at the proper time. Inquiry disclosed the fact that the interest on endowment funds, increased as they had been, was far from sufficient to meet the needs of a growing institution. Though I had stipulated, in accepting my place, that I should be excused for two years from all work in the raising of money, I saw that without additional funds we must close our doors. With an anxious heart I went to New York City and begged for help. To my great gratification and surprise, men of generosity and wealth responded to my appeals. Our deficit was immediately paid; new funds were soon subscribed; buildings were gradually provided for. From year to year these efforts have been repeated, until now in the fiftieth year of our Seminary history we are enabled to report, instead of $200,000, a property of $878,689, of which $77,300 is the estimated value of the library, $131,631 of the buildings and grounds, and $669,758 of the invested funds.

A historical sketch like this would be very incomplete if it did not include some account of the principal givers. First and foremost among these is one to whom we can never cease to be grateful, because he came to our rescue in a time of great need, and stood persistently by, until the Seminary was beyond the danger of collapse or extinction. I mean John B. Trevor, of Yonkers, N. Y. He became a Trustee of the Seminary in 1868, through the influence of his pastor, one of our graduates, Dr. A. J. F. Behrends. He interested himself in our work; he contributed $18,000 toward the erection of the building known as Trevor Hall; he gave $30,000 for the endowment of the chair of New Testament Interpretation occupied by Dr. Hackett. When I began my own efforts to collect funds for the Seminary, I naturally made my first appeal to him. He not only responded most generously, but he did more,—he told me in so many words that he had resolved to concentrate his gifts to education upon Rochester, and by Rochester I understood him at that time to mean the Rochester Theological Seminary, although he afterwards did give almost as largely to the University.

Having once given me his confidence, he did not withdraw it. Again and again he cleared off our annually recurring deficits. He was sometimes brusque in manner, but this was because he knew his own mind and had no time to waste. In his business he made important decisions with lightning-like rapidity, and he carried this characteristic into his benevolence. A few years after my acquaintance with him began, I made an expedition to New York with a heavy burden upon me. He invited me into the upper room of his office, where we could talk in private. “Well,” he said, “what is it that you most need?” “Mr. Trevor,” I replied, “we have a debt of $13,000 that is hanging like a millstone about our necks.” “Don’t trouble yourself further about that, Dr. Strong; I will pay that.” This so took my breath away, that I had hardly presence of mind to say my thanks, when he added: “Is there anything else that you need?” Then I told him of our meagre accommodations for lectures in Trevor Hall, and the need of an additional building for temporary use. He asked the probable cost of it. I told him that $12,000 would be sufficient. "Well," he said, "I will give that. Anything else?" So, before I left him, he had given me thirty-two thousand dollars. When he died in 1890, the total amount of his gifts to the Seminary had reached the sum of $209,000. Trevor Hall, the Trevor Professorship of New Testament Exegesis, and the Trevor Reading-room Fund, are lasting monuments to his memory; and, since his death, Mrs. Trevor has generously endowed the Trevor Lectureship by a gift of $10,000. But to all of those who intimately knew him there is a remembrance of his quick, frank, faithful, generous nature, which needs no outward monument to perpetuate it.

The next largest giver to the Seminary funds is Mr. John D. Rockefeller, and the amount he has already paid into our treasury is $160,833. This does not include his recent pledge of $150,000 upon condition that a like sum be raised by us. Already $65,000 of this amount has been subscribed, and an addition of $130,000 to our endowment has been thus secured. If I were describing the living benefactors of the institution, nothing would please me more than to speak of some of his noble characteristics, but this I must leave to future and worthier historians. And since time presses, I can mention only hastily the names of a few whose gifts have brought joy to our hearts and have greatly helped the work of the Seminary. In 1851 Roswell S. Burrows of Albion purchased the Neander Library of forty six hundred volumes for twenty three hundred dollars. William Rockefeller of New York gave $25,000 for the enlargement of the Library and $7,000 for other purposes, making a total of $32,000. A subscription of $25,000 by John M. Bruce of Yonkers, for the establishment of the Bruce Library Fund, was promptly paid by his heirs after his death. Dr. Horatio B. Hackett left to us his whole exegetical apparatus, amounting to 700 volumes. These gifts have enabled us to increase our collection until it now numbers over 30,000 books, exclusive of pamphlets, maps, and objects of archaeological interest.

The largest legacy which the Seminary has ever received was that of Eli Perry of Albany, amounting to $85,448. We have also received by bequest $21,404 from Mrs. Helen M. Randall; $10,449 from James Hubbell; $7,000 from H. M. Baldwin in addition to $2,000 given before his death; $6,304 from John Dowley; $5,606 from Lewis B. Grant; $5,000 each from George A. Woolverton and Alvah Strong; $3,000 from A. W. Miner; $2,000 each from C. C. Bush, N. Kellogg, Francis D. Mason, Mrs. Julia A. Smith, and James Stokes. The following friends of theological education have given during their lifetime: Joseph B. Hoyt of Stamford, Conn., $54,000, of which $25,000 was for the endowment of the Chair of Hebrew in the English Department, and $12,000 toward the endowment of a chair in the German Department; Charles Pratt of Brooklyn, N. Y., $26,250, of which $25,000 was for the establishment of a Professorship of Elocution; Byron E. Huntley, of Batavia, N. Y., and John J. Jones, of Orange, N. J., $20,000 each, for the endowment of Professorships in the German Department, Mr. Huntley having contributed $2,640 in addition for other purposes; John M. Davies, of New York, $17,500, and Robert K. Davies, of New York, $15,000, both for the endowment of the chair of Biblical Theology; J. A. Bostwick, of New York, $17,000; Mrs. Eliza A. Witt, of Cleveland, Ohio, for scholarships, $15,000; J. O. Pettingill, of Rochester, $12,650; John H. Deane, of New York, $9,867; John F. Wyckoff, $9,400; John Bush, $6,100; Nathan Bishop of New York, $6,000, and Mrs. Caroline C. Bishop, $4,700; Jeremiah Milbank, of New York, $5,350, Mrs. Jeremiah Milbank, $2,000, and E. L. Milbank, $1,000; William A. Cauldwell, William Phelps, Danford Knowlton, Royal L. Mack, A. J. Wellman, $5,000 each; J. F. Rathbone, $4,600; Senator Blakeslee, $4,050; E. L. Hedstrom, of Buffalo, $3,950, Mrs. E. L. Hedstrom and Arthur Hedstrom, $3,150; J. Q. Preble, $3,800; Samuel S. Constant, $3,040; Oren Sage, $2,850; A. J. Fox, $2,800; Mrs. W. H. Randall, $2,500; Charles J. Martin, $2,200; Thomas Cornell, Russell Forsyth, Theoron Fiske, Mrs. H. M. Hutchinson, S. S. Jewett, R. W. Noble, Mrs. Martha Stewart, $2,000 each.

When the University and the Seminary were first established, the old United States Hotel on West Main Street was purchased for their occupation. Its cost was $9,000. Additions and repairs brought the expense up to $10,500. Here both institutions had their local habitation for eleven years, when in 1861 the University took possession of Anderson Hall, its new building erected, at a cost of about $40,000, on grounds eight acres of which had been presented by, and seventeen acres of which had been purchased of, Mr. A. Boody. The Seminary purchased for $10,000 the premises which it had hitherto occupied in common with the University and it continued to occupy them eight years longer, or until 1869, when Trevor Hall was completed, at a cost of $43,000, on one of the best locations in the city, and the old premises were disposed of. A site had been offered to the Seminary upon the University campus, but the particular portion of the grounds which the friends of the University were willing to set apart did not please the friends of the Seminary, nor could the Seminary secure a title to the plot thus offered. Under these circumstances it seemed unwise to put their new building upon ground which they did not own. Past experience had taught them, moreover, that the growth and influence of the Seminary would be best promoted by an independent existence. When they entered Trevor Hall, they felt for the first time that they had a permanent home of their own, and they have never since seen reason to regret their decision.

Mention should be made of the excellent service rendered us in the Secretaryship of the Union by General Thomas J. Morgan. Without his labors in soliciting funds from individuals and churches for the several rooms of Trevor Hall, the building could not have been erected, even with the gifts of $18,000 by John B. Trevor, and of $7,000 by James B. Colgate. We have been blessed, indeed, with a long succession of efficient Secretaries. As Zenas Freeman, Archibald Servoss and Henry L. Achilles preceded General Morgan, so James D. Reid, Samuel Adsit, Henry L. Morehouse, William Elgin, Samuel P. Merrill, and Josiah R. Henderson have in their order followed him. The sums collected by them from the churches for beneficiaries and for current expenses have varied with the years of famine or of plenty, yet on the whole have steadily increased. While the Treasurer's Report for 1852 shows only $2,219 received for current expenses, the Report for 1879 gives the amount as $8,725, and the Report for 1899 as $10,967, or including a special gift of $5,000, $15,967.

The erection of Rockefeller Hall in 1879 marked a great step forward in the comfort and success of our work. The fire-proof room for our Library met the condition upon which John M. Bruce subscribed his Library Fund. Convenient rooms for lectures had hitherto been wanting. They were now provided, together with a Chapel for daily worship and for the weekly preaching service of the Senior Class. Here also has been held for more than twenty years the noon prayer meeting, of fifteen or twenty minutes in length, entirely voluntary, yet largely attended by students and professors alike. This informal gathering for prayer has become a distinct and unique feature of our Seminary life, and has exerted a vast influence upon the morale of the institution. If any one has thought theological study unfavorable to devotion, he needs only to hear the fervent prayers and the stirring remarks of these daily meetings to be convinced of his mistake. They have taught many a minister how to conduct the meetings of his church, and have proved to him, even during his Seminary course, the truth of Luther's maxim: Orare est laborare—"praying is the best of working."

During the half century, the Institution has made several forward movements in theological education, and the steps should be chronicled. Our first step in advance had to do with the length of our course. The Seminary began by providing a course of only two years. This was found, after twelve years' experience, to be insufficient. Thorough preparation for the ministry required a wider range and a longer term of study. In 1862, therefore, the course was lengthened to three years, and for this reason in that year no class was graduated. Our second step in advance had to do with requisitions for entrance. Until 1890 the Seminary maintained a Partial or English Course, for the benefit of those who had not enjoyed the advantages of a college education. But it was found that the number of these unprepared students constantly increased, until they drove away fully prepared men. With considerable trepidation it was resolved to admit to the Seminary only college graduates, or those who had an equivalent training. The new regime has worked most successfully. Instead of diminishing our numbers, as was feared, our numbers during the last ten years have well nigh doubled. Our homogeneous classes do far more and far better work than was possible in 1890. The advantage to both teachers and students of the requisition that all persons entering the Seminary shall be prepared both in English and in Greek may be seen from the fact that while, during the year 1889-90, out of a total number of sixty-four students, only twenty-eight took Hebrew and only forty-four took Greek studies, all of the one hundred and six students of the present year take Hebrew studies as well as Greek.

Other institutions have followed our lead in this respect, although at the first they severely criticized it. In some cases young men to whom we have refused admission on account of their imperfect preparation have turned back and have taken the preliminary college training. A third advance movement has been inaugurated during the past year. It has to do with the conditions of aid. Aid is henceforth to be given to students in proportion to their scholarly standing; and no aid whatever is to be given to any whose scholarly standing does not promise intelligent and efficient service in the ministry. Observation widely extended has shown that the men who fall out of the ministry are as a rule the poor scholars. Scholarly attainments and fidelity to the work assigned in the classes are the best practicable test of moral integrity and the best guarantee of future usefulness. Instructors cannot look into the hearts of their pupils or mathematically determine the amount of their piety, but they can observe their diligence in study and assign their proper grades in the performance of their tasks. This Seminary now sets itself by the side of the Union Seminary of New York and of the Divinity School of Yale, in refusing aid to slipshod and emotional men who cannot or will not do serious intellectual work. Though by this change we may temporarily lose in numbers, we are sure that we thus spend most economically the money intrusted to us by the churches, and we believe that, as with the previous advances, future growth will justify the new policy to which we have now committed ourselves.

The Seminary would never have been able thus steadily to move forward, had it not been blessed with a most judicious, progressive and harmonious Board of Trustees. The Executive Committee of that Board has been especially faithful. There have been no quarrels and no divisions. The funds have been so admirably kept and administered, that the increase in their market value has very considerably exceeded any slight losses due to foreclosures or failures. To these brethren who have for many years freely given their time and their counsel, the institution and the denomination owe a debt which it can never repay. Let me mention only a few who have thus borne the burden and heat of the day. Two have finished their earthly work and have gone to their rest: Hon. James O. Pettingill, a man of quick sympathies but steady determination, who served us as Trustee for twenty-nine years, as member of the Executive Committee for twenty-seven years, and as Chairman of that Committee for sixteen years, until his death in 1883; and Judge George W. Rawson, whose legal acumen and keen conscience made him an invaluable counsellor during the eleven years from 1866 to 1877. Coming now to those who are still with us, let me name only four. Mr. Ezra R. Andrews has now been a member of the Executive Committee for thirty-four years, and for seventeen years the Chairman of that Committee. Mr. Austin H. Cole has been a Trustee for twenty-three years, but a member of the Executive Committee for thirty-three, and its Recording Secretary for thirty-three. Mr. D. A. Woodbury has been both Trustee and member of the Executive Committee since 1861, a period of thirty-nine years. Mr. Cyrus F. Paine has been member for forty-seven years, and he was Treasurer of the Union from 1853 to 1899, giving to the Seminary forty-six years of as skillful, conscientious and laborious service as was ever given to a great Christian institution. If any man deserves to have a tablet set up for his memorial, in connection with this fiftieth anniversary, it is this most patient, kindly and self-forgotten man, who has put into our work so large and precious a portion of his life.

In 1870 three members of the class that had recently graduated returned to Rochester for a year of post-graduate study. They were John T. Beckley, afterwards Pastor of the Epiphany Baptist Church of New York City; Wayland R. Benedict, now Professor of Philosophy and Dean of the University of Cincinnati; and Benjamin O. True, now Professor of Church History in our Seminary. Thomas J. Morgan, now Secretary of the American Baptist Home Mission Society, was also frequently present and shared the work of the class. The work was practically identical with that of the German Seminar. Hopes were entertained that other post-graduate classes might follow. Dr. Robinson's removal to Brown University, and the increased demands upon the Faculty, made it impossible to realize this hope. With our limited teaching force and our limited endowment, we have settled down into the belief that the province of the Seminary is strictly elementary, and that the wiser plan is to furnish the best training in the rudiments of theology and to leave post-graduate work to the Universities. Nor have we thus far fallen in with the common view that it belongs to the Seminary to provide multiplied elective courses. We have chosen rather to offer a fixed curriculum, embracing all the scholastic work essential to a specific training for the ministry. We have regarded a thorough grounding in the Hebrew Bible, the Greek New Testament, Church History, Systematic Theology, Homiletics, Pastoral Theology, and Eloquence, as the matter of prime importance, leaving special studies to be pursued elsewhere after the Seminary course is finished, and in this way conforming our policy to that of the best schools of other professions, as, for example, schools of Law and of Medicine.

It is a grief to me that limits of time and the proprieties of the occasion do not permit me to praise, as they deserve to be praised, the noble candor, harmony and loyalty, that have prevailed in the Faculty of our Seminary during all my connection with it as President, and which have made possible all our advances and all our success. It would be a great satisfaction to me if I could properly commemorate the services of Professor William C. Wilkinson, who held the chair of Homiletics and Pastoral Theology from 1873 to 1881; of Professor Albert H. Newman, who held the chair of Ecclesiastical History from 1877 to 1881; of Professor Adelbert S. Coats, who held the chair of Eloquence from 1881 to 1892. It would specially please me if I could tell how much the Seminary owes to the twenty-five years service of Dr. Howard Osgood, who this year closes his work among us. His learning, his courtesy, his piety, will leave a blessing behind them. May his days still be long in the land of the living, and every day of them all be filled with usefulness!

Professor William Arnold Stevens completes this year a period of twenty-three years of instruction in the department of New Testament Interpretation. He has given us a method of inestimable value, and many another teacher has learned from him to teach. Dr. T. Harwood Pattison has for nineteen years taught men to preach, not only by precept but by authorship and by example. His brilliancy and wit, strangely combined with patient regularity and Christian fervor, have been ever like a fresh breeze through what might else have been dusty halls. Dr. Benjamin O. True has furnished a model of enthusiasm in the study and the teaching of the history of the church. For an equal period of nineteen years he has made the dry bones of the past to live, and the sacramental host of God's elect to pass before the student, an exceeding great army.

Dr. Henry E. Robins has not been able to do active work of teaching, but for eighteen years he has without compensation given us his wise counsel and his constant encouragement. We cherish the hope that the Christian Ethics he has not had the health to teach may yet be put into a book that will widely and deeply influence the thought of our time. Dr. Jacob S. Gubelmann for fifteen years has commended Christian doctrine to successive classes in the German Department, while at the same time he has shown himself in our American churches to be a model preacher of the word of God. Professor John P. Silvernail has now for eight years taught and exemplified a simple, natural and manly elocution. And of our younger instructors, Professor Walter R. Betteridge who has served us for eight years as Assistant in Hebrew, Professor Albert J. Ramaker whose work in the German Department began in 1889, Professor Louis Kaiser in 1890, and Professor Walter Rauschenbusch in 1897, I can say in all truth and soberness that they have fully justified the confidence we reposed in them at the time of their election, and that they promise great and distinguished service to the cause of ministerial education. No one of all the thirty-one men who have at various times taught in the Seminary has apostatized from the Christian faith, while many of them have been great lights in our firmament and great leaders of our people.

During the last fifty years our denomination in the State of New York has made great progress in numbers. In 1850 we had 810 churches; in 1900 we have 934. In 1850 we had 744 ministers; in 1900 we have 953. In 1850 we had 81,509 church members; in 1900 we have 150,875. During this same half century, Baptists have increased yet more in the country at large. In 1850 we had in the United States 9,549 churches; in 1900 we have 42,893. In 1850 we had 7,385 ministers; in 1900 we have 28,409. In 1850 we had 801,770 church members; in 1900 we have 4,141,995. While the population of the country has increased a little more than three-fold, Baptists have increased between four and five-fold. What has the Rochester Theological Seminary done to help this growth, and how far have we kept up with the general forward movement of our denomination? The statistics show, I believe, that this Seminary has been one of the potent factors in this growth, and that a large part of our denominational increase in numbers, in intelligence, in financial ability, in benevolent contributions, has been due to the influence of this institution.

During these fifty years, 1447 men have pursued studies here; of whom 1128 have been connected with the English, and 319 with the German Department. 870 of these students have been graduates of colleges. 335 men have taken the so-called English Course, now abolished, and of these 87 have been college graduates. 688 have completed the full Seminary Course, including the Hebrew and Greek Scriptures. 385 have taken partial courses or have left the Seminary before graduating. The average number which we have sent into the ministry year by year is 25. Whereas the Seminary began in 1850 with 23 students, it has this year 148, of whom 105 are in the English Department. Of our graduates, 64 have become Presidents or Professors in Colleges or Theological Seminaries; 55 have gone out as foreign missionaries, and 34 have served as missionaries in the great West; 29 have been Secretaries or Agents of Educational or Missionary Societies; and 10 have been Editors of religious journals.

The Seminary has gained its influence by adhering strictly to the aim of its founders, that of making preachers rather than mere scholars. Dr. Robinson gloried in teaching homiletics as well as theology. He declared, in so many words, that "the attempted conjunction of a study of Systematic Theology with a homiletic use of it is one of the distinctive peculiarities of the Rochester Theological Seminary." We have maintained the early traditions of the institution also by cultivating the habit of theological thought, rather than by insisting upon the acceptance of theological formulas. Freedom of discussion and the right of private judgment in the interpretation of Scripture are essential principles of the Baptist faith,—we recognize these principles in our Seminary instruction. We believe in the progress of doctrine, not in the sense that the truth changes, but in the sense that men's apprehension of the truth improves from age to age. Theology can gain in breadth and depth, by taking in the fresh air of modern philosophy and science, by absorbing whatever is good in modern thought and life. For all that is good in modern thought and life is the work of Christ and the product of his Holy Spirit. I believe that our graduates have done a mighty service to the church and to the world by presenting the old truth in new forms, by adapting the gospel to new conditions, by recognizing the good in other systems than our own, by substituting vital and spiritual conceptions for those which were merely mechanical and legal, by insisting on a personal appropriation and a unique expression of Christian doctrine on the part of every preacher and of every believer.

I have taken pleasure in this retrospect, for the reason that I was here at the birth of the Seminary and have had acquaintance with every stage of its subsequent history. I knew all of its first students, and I have had the privilege in these later years of welcoming into the undergraduate ranks many of their sons. And the children have been better than the fathers, sharper in mind, of finer culture, and of equal piety. May the prophet's words continue to be fulfilled, that "instead of the fathers shall be the children." May there ever be a truly apostolic succession of consecrated men, and may our graduates do their part in keeping up this succession, by sending their own sons hither, and so committing the things which they heard to faithful men who shall be able to teach others also!

Space-relations are something to God, or he would not permit the local interests and affections to grow up which so bind us to the Seminary that nourished us in our youth. To remove an institution is much harder than to remove an individual. Rochester has become a sacred city to which the tribes go up, and many of its children remember it as the Jews remembered Zion. Time-relations are something to God, or he would not have made the memories of the past so precious, nor the steps of our progress so plain, from those early days when here we met with God and yielded ourselves to his service, down to these later years when we recognize the good hand that has so divinely led us and acknowledge that not one word of all God's promises has failed.

Yet God is above space and time, and we are in God. We mark the passage of time, and we write our histories. But we can do this, only because in our highest being we do not belong to space and time, but have in us a bit of eternity. John Caird tells us that we could not perceive the flowing of the stream if we were ourselves a part of the current; only as we have our feet planted on solid rock, can we observe that the water rushes by. So we recognize the process of events only because we are not a part of the process. We belong to God; we are akin to God; and while the world passes away and the lust thereof, he that doeth the will of God abideth forever.

Fifty years have past, and but one of the original officers of the Union remains. Another fifty years, and none but the youngest of us will be here. But the Seminary will survive, for it was founded in the prayers and tears of the fathers, and those prayers and tears reflected the heart of God. There is a care greater than all human care. It is God's care for his own. And therefore we believe that other trustees and other teachers and other students in long succession will fill these halls and do this work of providing a trained and competent ministry for Christ's church. We who are present actors on the scene shall pass away, and not one who has given care or time or labor or money or prayer for this institution shall fail to hear Christ say: "Inasmuch as ye did it unto the least of these my brethren, ye did it unto me." But other actors shall take our place. The resources of our Lord are infinite. Hitherto hath the Lord helped us. He will provide for the time to come. And if the history of the past gives any pledge for the future, it encourages us to believe that the future will be one of ever growing success and honor, until Christ himself shall come.

And yet we cannot be absolutely sure that any earthly instrument is necessary to God. Times change, and methods change with them. Our part is to do our work, to stand by the institutions Christ has put into our charge, to make them, by our liberality, our teaching, our influence, what they ought to be. The present is ours; the future belongs to God. We trust that the Seminary shall abide so long as the world stands. But, after all, the Seminary is but a means to an end. That end is the progress and triumph of the kingdom of God. If not the Seminary, yet the kingdom, shall endure. For the King is Christ, the same yesterday, to-day, and forever; and the Rochester Theological Seminary will have served its purpose if it only has exalted him who is King of the ages and Lord of all.
